The majority of mined diamonds fall between white and pale yellow or brown; what is known as the normal color range. Diamonds of more intense color (usually yellow, but in some cases red, green or blue) are termed fancy color diamonds. Black diamonds are also fancy color diamonds. All other factors being equal, the most valuable diamonds are those with the least color (appearing white to the eye ...

Hands down, for me, Mary Whyte is a master of watercolor. She evokes emotion, passion, and movement with the use of textures, lines, light, contrast, shadows,.... color is secondary to all the other elements of her work yet it is used judiciously too. The human element of her paintings tug at my heart. YOur work is so beautiful ,Mary.
